Walking the Boundaries is a one-day workshop built around St Luke’s Innovative Resources’ recently released card set of the same name. This highly interactive workshop will open up dynamic conversations and reflection—conversations that will energise staff and enhance cohesion and understanding in your teams. Walking the Boundaries cards are a unique and invaluable tool for staff orientation and training, supervision sessions, dispute resolution, planning and teambuilding.

In this workshop participants will:

- explore common ethical dilemmas respectfully together—and notice the energy and engagement levels in the room rise!
- consider the impact of ethical decisions on clients and workers
- learn how reflective practice fosters ongoing learning for the worker, helps prevent burn out and leads to better outcomes for clients
- use a number of other Innovative Resources’ card sets to build a rich picture that includes stories, values and feelings about best practice
- discuss ways to embed ethical, client-centred decision-making practice in their organisation
- leave with an enhanced understanding of their role as culture builders
- take away ideas for how conversations about ethical dilemmas might take place in their organisations
- take home a set of Walking the Boundaries cards
